FIRST TECH BOARD CHAIRMAN INDUCTED INTO CREDIT UNION EXECUTIVE SOCIETY VOLUNTEER HALL OF FAME

Mountain View, Calif. – January 22, 2013 – The Credit Union Executive Society (CUES) recently honored John Weidert, First Tech Federal Credit Union chairman of the board, with the Volunteer Hall of Fame 2012 award. Weidert, a member of the credit union’s board for more than 25 years, has contributed to the extraordinary growth of the organization from 32,000 members to more than 365,000 during his tenure. The Volunteer Hall of Fame recognizes individuals who have shown dedication to self-development, encouragement of full board development and who have provided ideas for the advancement of all credit union boards.

“We are thrilled to see John recognized for his many contributions to First Tech,” said Greg Mitchell, First Tech’s president and CEO. “His long-time devotion to our credit union, his collaborative leadership style and his desire to make a positive difference in lives of others make him an ideal candidate for this award.”

As a board volunteer for 28 years, Weidert has advocated for both personal and organizational growth by encouraging board members to attend conferences and industry events that help them stay up-to-date with current events, trends and matters relevant to the credit union industry.

John Weidert had a long and distinguished career at Hewlett Packard, where he led the Integrated Systems Division. He previously served on the board of the Hewlett Packard Retirement Club and is currently serving as its Membership Chairman. Weidert lives in Los Gatos, Calif.
