Sharing Personal Information for Cross-Context Behavioral Advertising

Cross-context behavioral advertising refers to the targeting of advertising to a consumer based on the consumer’s personal information obtained from the consumer’s activity across businesses, distinctly branded websites, applications, or services, other than the business, distinctly branded website, application, or service with which the consumer intentionally interacts.

The following categories of your personal information are shared for cross-context behavioral advertising purposes: Identifiers and Geolocation data

You may opt out through the “Do Not Sell or Share My Personal Information” link available on the homepage of our website.

Retention of Personal Information

The criteria we will use to determine the period of time that we will retain the categories personal information described above depends on our relationship with you and on the following criteria:

- Laws and regulations. We are a regulated financial institution that is subject to laws and regulations governing our retention of personal information of our members, applicants for credit union membership, loans and other financial products and services. We are also an employer and, thus, we are subject to labor laws governing how long we must retain information about applicants for employment and current and former employees. Therefore, applicable laws and regulations will govern how long we retain your personal information.

- Contracts. We must also retain information for as long as necessary to comply with our contractual duty to you as well as our contractual obligations with our service providers, contractors and other third-parties.

- Assert and defend against legal actions. We may retain your personal information for such period as we may need to assert and defend against potential legal actions.
